You get bigger as you grow.

A snake gets bigger too!

But, unlike you, the skin of a snake does not grow.

A snake can grow a new skin under its old skin.

A new skin is under the old skin.
It has the same colors and shapes.
But now it fits just right!

So, a snake must shed its skin.
First, it rubs on a tree or rock.
This helps the old skin to get loose.

You shed your skin too! All animals do. But only a snake can peel all their skin at once!

Then, a snake wiggles and squirms.
It gets out of its too small skin.
And it leaves that old skin behind.

Young snakes may shed their skin as many as six times a year.
