

Photo credit: Julia_Sudnitskaya | istockphoto

Rain falls during a big storm.

A Big Storm

Dark clouds drift across the sky. More clouds drift in. The wind starts to blow. The rain starts to fall. A big storm is coming.

First, a light mist makes things wet. Then more rain falls. The wind blows harder. Water starts to flow down the streets as the rain falls. More and more water flows down the streets.

Some storms bring snow that falls soft and white. Other storms bring hail that falls fast. When frost comes, it makes the ground shine. This storm brings rain and fog.

The fog makes it hard to see far. The clouds are still dark. The rain keeps falling. The wind blows through the trees. The storm has not stopped. The clouds drift and the rain flows. The wind keeps on blowing.

Now the storm is ending. The clouds drift away. The fog lifts. The rain stops. But the ground is still wet. The ground is also covered with sticks and leaves that have dropped from trees