Caves

PINK STEP SET C-1: Early Homes | Book 1

written by Elfrieda H. Hiebert

Early people would sleep under trees.

Then people learned to make fire.

Fire drives wild animals out of caves.

Fire keeps people warm too.

Now caves were a safe and warm place to live.

Fire keeps people warm and safe from wild animals.

Long ago, people did not have houses.
They would sleep in trees or under big stones.

These places could be cold.

Wild animals could find them too.

Early people would sleep in caves too.

Then early people learned about caves.
Caves could be under the ground or on hillsides.

But caves were not always safe.
Wild animals made their homes in caves.
