Honey

PINK STEP SET C-10 Busy Bees | Book 3

written by Elfrieda H. Hiebert & Wendy Svec

A bee stores nectar in its body,
which it takes back to the hive.

The nectar and spit mix.
When it is thick, it turns to honey!
The bees then put the honey into cells.

The bees seal shut the cells with beeswax, which keeps the honey safe for later use.

Honey bees make honey.

First, a honey bee gets nectar from flowers.

They have long tongues to lap it up.

The spit of a bee helps turn nectar to honey!

The honey bee goes back to the hive.
There, they spit the nectar back up.
And they pass it from bee to bee.
