

Under the Ground

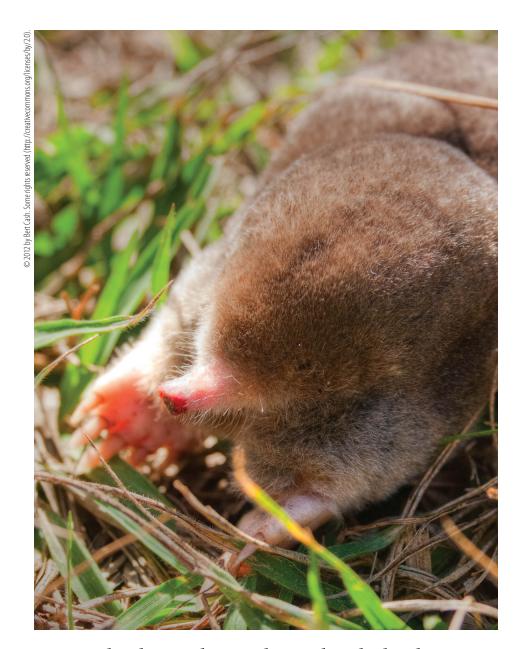

Moles also use their sharp claws to catch bugs and worms. Sometimes, they store bugs and worms in their underground places to eat later.

You might not see a mole in the woods.

That is because moles spend most of their lives underground.

Moles have sharp claws that help them dig underground. Moles rest in their underground homes.