

American Places

©2009 by carfull...Cowboy State-r at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/2.0/>

©2011 by gGraphy at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/2.0/>

Visit

(vis·it)

To visit means to go somewhere and spend time. People visit many places that they think are special.

Mount Rushmore

The Grand Canyon

Caves (caves)

A cave is a hole under the ground or in the side of a hill or cliff.

Above: a cave in a cliff.

Below: a cave under the ground.

Sand Dunes (sand dunes)

©2014 by Rene Jakobson at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/2.0/>

©2010 by Shawn Beelman at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/2.0/>

Swamps

(swamps)

©2013 by Nicholas A. Tonelli at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/2.0/>

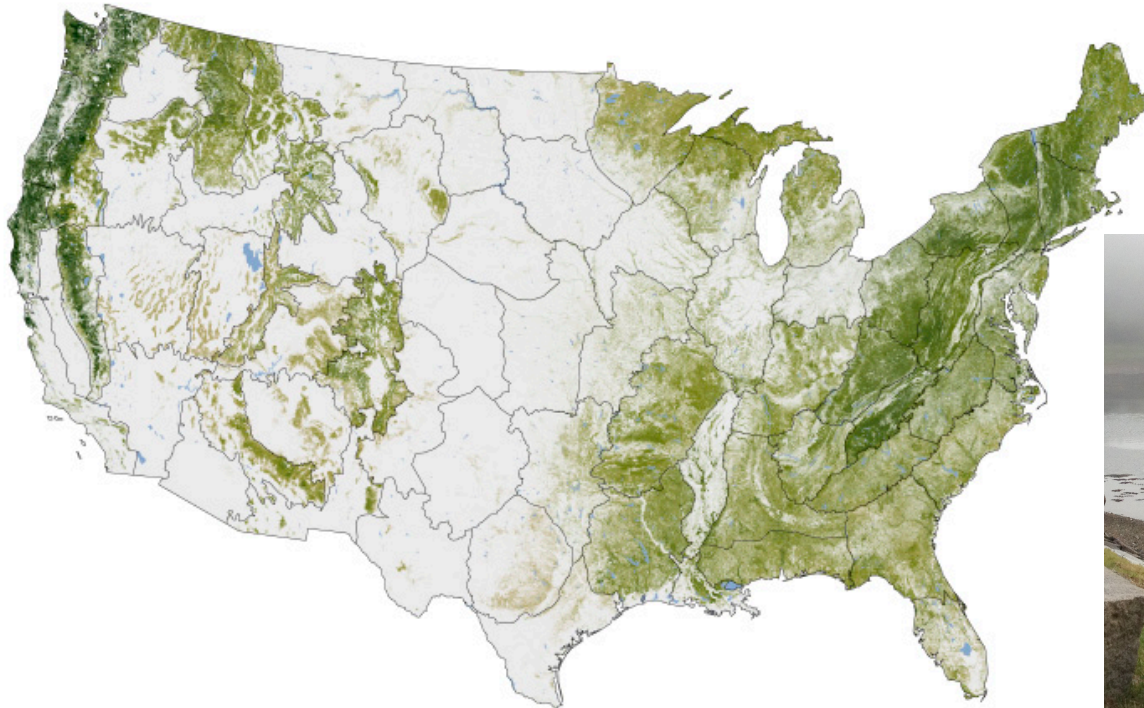

©2004 by Todd Hall at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/2.0/>

Nation

(na·tion)

A nation is an area of land controlled by it's own government.

The United States of America is a nation.

©2002 by NASA's Earth Observatory at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/2.0/>

Nation's

(na·tion's)

Nation's is the possessive form of nation. Nation's is used to describe things that are owned or controlled by the government.

In the United States, the nation's library is the biggest in the world.

National

(na·tion·al)

When the word National is used it means that something is owned or controlled by a nation's government.

Many people like to visit the National Parks in the United States.

©2012 by OakleyOriginals at Flickr. Some rights reserved. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/2.0/>

Library of Congress

(li·brary of con·gress)

President

(pres·i·dent)

President Barack Obama and First Lady Michelle Obama

President John F. Kennedy

Mailbox

(mail·box)

